

Industry Analyst (Entry Level), Cambridge, UK

Cambashi is a well-established boutique company with a global reputation for market intelligence. We have an exciting opportunity for an entry level Industry Analyst based in our Cambridge headquarters. Cambashi is a small, friendly team that offers scope to gain experience in a range of projects for global software companies and the opportunity to travel abroad to analyst events and conferences.

See some of our areas of research here.

The role involves a variety of activities including market research and surveys, competitive and pricing analysis, complex data analysis, case studies and marketing strategy. The successful candidate will be part of the team developing and maintaining the Cambashi Market Observatories, our primary data service, and will also contribute to business development activities. Fluency in English is essential, proficiency in additional languages would be an asset.

Desired experience/skills

- A graduate-level qualification that demonstrates knowledge of two or more of the following topics: economics, engineering, maths, finance, marketing, business or science
- Strong analytical abilities and problem-solving skills
- Knowledge of, or interest to learn, Microsoft Excel to an intermediate level including data tables, pivot tables, V&H lookup functions and slicers
- Fluent written and oral communications skills
- The ability to act independently as well as being a team player
- Some knowledge or experience of technical software used for manufacturing, construction, media and utilities is desirable
- Ability to research and rapidly assimilate knowledge of new topics, by finding online sources, and identifying, extracting and tabulating relevant data for integration into market models.

This is a full-time position, available immediately. You will be based in Cambridge, UK with some overseas travel. Salary range £20,000 to £25,000 p.a. with the opportunity to participate in the company bonus scheme.

We plan to make the appointment by January 2019. CVs and covering letters should be emailed to Pippa.Burke@cambashi.com before October 26, 2018. Interviews are expected to take place in November/December 2018.

Cambashi is an equal opportunities employer.